LIFE SENTENCE

Once More Given to Caleb Powers at Georgetown.

Stronger Case Made Out Against Him Than at The Former Trial.

Georgetown, Ky., Oct. 26.—A second time a jury has fixed a life sentence upon Caleb Powers as an accessory to the murder of William Goebel. The verdict was read by J. B. Calvert, the chum of Powers' Scholastic days at State College. The jury was given the case at 2:21 o'clock this afternoon and forty-nine minutes later the verdict was reported. A motion for a new trial was overruled, sentence was passed and judgment suspended pending an appeal, and to-night Powers is again confined in the Franklin County jail to await the decision of the State's highest court.

SOME FAVORED HANGING.

It is learned to-night upon good authority that three jurors voted on the first ballot to hang Powers. Two others said they were willing to vote the same way with the first three, but the remaining seven insisted on a life sentence, and the others readily agreed on that verdict.

DEATH RESULTED

From Congestion, Superinduced By Eating Wild Grapes.

A son of Mr. John Davis, of Haley's Mill, aged about fifteen years, died last Wednesday of congestion. He ate heartily of hickory nuts and wild grapes the Sunday before and the following night symptoms of colic developed. His bowels became locked and death resulted two days later. He was a very bright and promising youth and his death is much regretted by a large circle of friends.

The father of deceased is a well-known merchant at Haley's Mill.

SPECIAL REGISTRATION

The Absent And Sick Have Two More Days Yet.

According to law, Monday, October 28, Tuesday, Oct. 29, and Wednesday, Oct. 30, are set aside as special registration days. Onlymen who were absent from the city, detained at home because of illness of self or family will be permitted to exercise this special privilege.

The first day's registration yesterday resulted in the addition of 49 names up to 3 o'clock. Of these 23 were white and 26 were colored. Only two more days remain to register, to-day and to-morrow.

ADAIRVILLE SELECTED

As Place of Next Meeting of S. K. M. A.

Adairville was decided upon as the next place of meeting of the Southern Kentucky Medical Association which convened in Bowling Green last week. The following officers were elected:

Dr. E. N. Hall, of Woodburn, president; Dr. J. C. Douglas, of Franklin, first vice president; Dr. W. L. Garrin, of Horse Cave, second vice president, and Dr. J. T. Trabue, of Elkhorn, secretary.

WORK PROGRESSING

Rapidly and Trains May be Running by Jan. 1.

The force at work on the new railroad between Grancy and Cadiz is within two miles of Grancy and the work of grading will be completed early in next month. The calculation is to begin track laying early in December, and trains may be running before the end of the year.

RINGSTER TELLS

Of the Dismal Outlook For the Court House Gang.

Several of the Boys Are Almost Ready to Take to Their Beds.

The air is plus around head-quarters this week. It is awful to see the looks of distress on the faces of the Ring candidates and hear them abusing each other for handicapping the ticket. Everybody is accusing everybody else of being the Jonah, and no matter which way we look we see a fusion whale with his mouth wide open.

John Prowse made a break the other day that is going to lose Grancy to the Ring ticket next Tuesday. One day last week Harbinson Bros. gave a "negrominstrel" show at Grancy. The performers were full-blooded sons of Ham and the show they put up was attended by the best people of Grancy. The town authorities could find no law to tax the show except $50 for a "tent exhibition" and as it was not this kind of a show they passed the proposition up to John. Deputy Clerk Will Wicks took up the problem and finally made the Harrisons pay $5 for giving a "trained animal show." The show men protested that their colored men were not animals, but genuine artists and professional entertainers, but nothing but cash would satisfy the demand from the county clerk's office. Now the colored population around Grancy are hopping mad because the colored minstrels were classed as "trained animals" by the young man representing one of the Ring candidates. Some of them are even saying that the five dollar William was needed to baffle the boys with an election day, and make them forget the past.

This reminds me that Dr. Nance, a prominent Grancy man, is also chewing a rag because he says John held him up and made him pay a license of $2.50 on a mascot line hog. The Doctor now says he has had a lawyer to look up the matter and there was no authority for collecting the license and that when he pointed this out to Mr. Prowse, John told him it was too late to correct the mistake. I am afraid John is going to lose the Doctor's vote this time.

When Judge Winfree asked John Elland not to break up any more fusion meetings about ten days ago, it played thunder with John's usefulness in the campaign. John set out for Louisville about a week ago and we thought he had taken another tack and had gone to pull Debco's leg. As we need money and lots of it and John Prowse and Jack Tate are tired having their legs pulled, we were glad to have John touch the old man for a few thousand. But John staid and staid and the first thing we knew Debco was back at home and John was tearing it out in Louisville with a bucket of red paint in one hand and a brush in the other. Otto Anderson, who is beginning to doubt everything, doesn't believe John will get enough money in Louisville to keep Newstead's 150 majority from getting away from the Ring. And the Lord knows when Newstead wavers, the bottom is about ready to drop out of our whole shebang.

It has been the policy of the Ring

COURT ADOURNS.

Two Prisoners Taken to Pen—Jury Paid Off.

Circuit Court adjourned Saturday after a very busy session of six weeks. A large amount of business was transacted during the term and the docket is in good shape.

The jury in the damage suit of P. P. Huffman against the Hopkinsville Water Company returned a verdict for defendant.

Pomp B. Brane was granted a divorce from Mollie Brane.

William Mackey and Hughey Wagner, both colored, who were each given one year in the penitentiary for grand larceny, were taken to the Eddyville prison Saturday by Deputy Sheriff dooley.

The amount paid for jury service during court, including trustee's commission, was $1,707.74.

"THE AVENGER"

Played at Opera House To Good House.

The Grace Rentrif Stock Company, which will hold the boards at Holland's Opera House all this week, presented, for the first time in this city, the five-act comedy drama, "The Avenger," last night to a good house. This play was written especially for this company by Miss Sadie Cregan, author of "For Family Honor," "Twixt Love and Duty," etc.

Specialties were introduced between the acts, and the play throughout abounded with new features. Popular prices will prevail during the week and the company should be greeted with a crowded house on the occasion of each performance. There will be a Grand Family Matinee Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

STABBED IN SIDE.

Serious Cutting Affray at Republican Speaking at Fairview.

Filmore Tandy, and Charles Finch, both colored, became involved in a row over the division of some liquor last Friday night, at Fairview, just after the Republican speaking had closed and Finch was stabbed in the side. The wound is a very serious one and may prove fatal. The blade of the knife penetrated the hollow, just below the left nipple. Tandy has not yet been arrested.

ESQ. LONG DEAD.

Esq. John S. Long, a leading farmer and one of the most prominent men in the county, died yesterday morning, aged 59 years. His death was due to Bright's disease. He was a brother-in-law of Mr. C. A. Brasher, a well-known house he died. He leaves a wife, Esq.

KEEP YOUR BLOOD CLEAN

Preparing for Exhibition.

Prize Article.)

About six weeks before the fowls are to be exhibited select carefully the best specimens from your flock. Choose those that are best in all sections according to your reading of the Standard. Have ready for each fowl a coop at least 2x3 feet in size and sufficiently tall to allow a three-inch space between the comb of the fowl and top of coop when fowl stands erect. In the bottom of each coop put clean soft straw and fasten a tin cup to one side for water. Arrange the coops under shelter so the birds will be free from draught but will have plenty of light and ventilation. Feed regularly three times each day, paying attention to the color, weight and plumage of the fowls. Keep good, sharp grit before them all the time. Each bird should be noticed carefully and fed only what it will eat up clean at each feeding. For morning feed give wheat and oats. At noon green food and table scraps and at night cracked corn. The corn will build them up in weight more quickly than any other food. Three times each week give them a small handful of sunflower seed. These are to give lustre to the plumage. About twice a week feed a crumbly mash of bran, meat and oats mixed with sweet milk. This will keep the fowls in proper condition and will aid in building up muscle and frame. At each feeding accustom the bird to being handled. In the show room, a gentle bird, one that seems at home in his coop will be more likely to win a blue ribbon than one that flutters and throws itself all out of shape when being judged. Two days before shipping begin treating the head, feet, legs and plumage of the birds. Wash the feet and legs in warm water, get every particle of dust and dirt off, rub with sweet oil or vaseline and polish with a soft flannel. Wipe the face, comb, gills and wattles with a soft cloth that has been dipped in warm water and rub off every particle of scurf. Then take a piece of chamois skin and leatherly care from beet oil. This will give the plumage a fine gloss. Repeat this treatment the day the birds are shipped. White fowls are more trouble to prepare for exhibition because any dirt on the body or plumage gives them a dingy appearance. If very dirty they should be washed at least once more before they are exhibited. This washing is a tedious work, but it can be done successfully and without injury to the fowl if one will take time to give the bath properly. There should be three small tubs of lukewarm water. Lather the entire body of the fowl with some pure soap, Castile or White Ivory are good, then take the fowl by the feet and dip it into the first tub of water and wash well. Rinse thoroughly in the second tub, then dip in the third tub to give the finishing touch. A tiny bit of bluing in the third tub will improve the appearance of the plumage. After this bath wipe the bird off with a clean, soft, dry cloth and put him back in his clean coop.

perfectly dry. Fowls that have nice clean quarters and green grassy runs seldom need this bathing. When the time comes to ship the birds provide them with roomy coops so that the plumage will not be injured in any way. The coops should be large enough to allow the bird to stand up straight and to move about without musing the feathers. They should be tight enough to prevent draughts and smooth inside to prevent feathers being broken.

The first time I exhibited my fowls I followed these simple and practical rules and was rewarded by taking premiums over those from whom I had bought my foundation stock, and they had been exhibiting poultry for years.—Mrs. R. Whithorne, in Poultry Gazette.

Poultry on Farms.

If the farmers will make poultry a specialty on the farm and the flocks be increased to a number that would permit the farmer to devote his attention thereto, the profit received in proportion to the labor bestowed would be larger than that derived from cattle. In fact, considering that the fowls on the farms really receive little or no care is alone sufficient evidence that with excellent management and the use of selected breeds the farmer would be more favorable to poultry if he would make the experiment. So long have the farmers overlooked poultry that it is surprising how many inquiries come from that class asking information on the methods of management, yet these farmers are well familiar with the care and management required for horses, cattle, sheep and swine.

It is, however, creditable to such farmers that they are disposed to learn more, and they will make no mistake in placing the poultry department of the farm upon a plane higher than that occupied. The course to pursue is to gradually increase the flock every year, and not venture too largely at first, so as to gain experience while learning the business, and in a few years there will be a good profit coming in from poultry, the capital invested therein having been created by the fowls during the progress of development of the business. Leave the female members of the family out, for they will not be able to attend to large flocks, and begin in the poultry business with a determination to succeed in a few years, securing as much profit as possible with the least outlay for building and labor.

It is not difficult to keep two or three hundred hens on a farm, and two or three hundred dollars thus picked up will buy all the extras which the farmer finds necessary to purchase during the year. In this way he need not go in debt for the numerous small things which cannot be produced on the farm, and which of necessity must be purchased. Every time he goes to town he can sell chickens and eggs to run up a profit or loss in the aggregate, and poultry raising is one of the most important, though most neglected, industries on the farm. Other countries have found profit in poultry, and are shipping to America to supply the demand which should be met right here at home.

The Show Room an Educator.

Poultry shows are not only an educator for the fancier, but all who attend if they desire it to be. There is not a breeder who is not glad to answer any questions asked him regarding his stock, and especially point out good qualities and show why his stock won or lost, and by having these points explained, and comparing one with the other, it is an object lesson that can not be learned in any other way.

There are very few people who understand what it takes to constitute a good bird—that is, from a fancier's standpoint. It is a very common thing to hear a person say, when standing before a coop of chicks in the show room, "Isn't that a fine chicken?" "My, that's a fine fellow," and they were, to one who knows nothing about chickens, any more than to admire them for their large size; but after the judge has passed judgement it was found that these chicks failed to even get a place. The show room offers an interesting study, and should be more largely attended. — Farmers Home Journal.

Having by some surgeon Sibbok on thy charge to stop his wounds lest he die to death. "People can bleed to death. The loss of blood weakens the body. It must follow that gain of blood gives the body strength. The strengthening effect of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is in large part due to its action on the blood-making glands and the increased supply of pure, rich blood it produces. It is only when the blood is impoverished and impure that disease finds a soil in which to root. "The Discovery" purifies the blood and makes it antagonistic to disease. When the body is emancipated, the lungs are weak, and there is obstinate lingering cough. "Golden Medical Discovery" puts the body on a fighting, tooting against disease, and so increases the vitality that disease is thrown off, and physical health perfectly and permanently restored. It has cured thousands who were hopeless and helpless, and who had tried all other means of cure without avail.

IN A REMINISCENT VEIN.

I. K. Fletcher Tells of His Early Acquaintance With Several Varieties of Fowls.

The White Plymouth Rocks may legitimately claim lineal descent from the Plymouth rocks, for their first ancestors were pure albino products of the barred family.

In the winter of 1876, at Bangor, Me., Mr. Frost exhibited the first six White Plymouth Rocks. I was judging the exhibition. He offered to give me one of the trio; but instead of taking them, I advised him to go on breeding them, telling him I did not see why the same law that allowed pigeons would not allow albinism in fowls. I knew white from Blue Rock pigeons mated together often breed white. This he concluded to do, and bred them under the name of "Dirigos." Others secured them, and by some they were called, "Snowflakes" for a time; but when adopted by the American Poultry Association they went into the Standard as "White Plymouth Rocks."

They were less troubled with feathered shanks during their early days than their blue ancestors. Like all albinos, they seemed to lack the hardness of the colored birds, and fluctuated in their hold upon the breeders, so that their classes in our exhibitions were never large ones. This condition has been influenced much by the prevailing belief that all white breeds are less hardy than the colored ones; but since the White Wyandottes—a seemingly hardy white variety—have become so popular that prejudice is dying out, the White Rock variety has taken on new life, and to-day we find the breed regaining the favor of the fanciers.

From the day these first albinos were shown up to 1890 and '91, they passed a varied existence, under many adverse circumstances and a strife for general acceptance when at the Indianapolis meeting for that year they were placed on the list of thoroughbred fowls; but I can assure the public that never in any exhibition for the twenty-five years since their introduction, has there been exhibited six birds of this breed better in shape, in color, or with brighter orange legs than those six at Bangor in the winter of 1896.

During their early history the most trying defects were blueish green under the scales in front of the shanks and the white so prevalent in the earlobes; but all exhibits were held rigidly up to the law for disqualification for white in earlobes, and shanks yellow, until by rigid selection the race appeared in the color the Standard demanded.

There were several attempts to swallow them up under other names. "White Middlesexes" was one. Single comb white fowls with smooth yellow shanks were thus shown at Buffalo, but under that head failed to be recognized.

It will be noticed that the White Rocks plodded along for fourteen years before they secured Standard recognition. It matters not who besides may claim their production and introduction, to Mr. Frost belongs the honor.

One cannot well write of them exclusively, for the present product is so closely connected with the White Wyandottes that to give an accurate history they must be acknowledged as, in their present form, an amalgamation of blood.

Notwithstanding the fact that the White Rock antedated the White Wyandotte ten full years, we see that the White Wyandottes were accepted and placed in our Standard (1891 edition) the same year as the Rocks. The White Wyandotte was first brought to notice by the Rev. Mr. Briggs, then living in Ohio, some four years or more before they were accepted.

Their early history also was checkered—but here let me digress a bit. We had, all of us, learned by this time that no albino had a long life unless its blood was strengthened by an infusion from other albino blood, and working on this knowledge, different breeders resorted to crosses for the above purpose. Albino males from Silver Laced Wyandottes were the most prevalent, and later, when the pure albinos were bred together, predominated, the females more generally reverting to the original Wyandotte color. Males were seured, and small combed White Rock hens bred with them. This was the most satisfactory yet Rose Combed, yellow legged Hamburg, and Rose Combed White Leghorns (then in their infancy) were also used in the manipulation of the White Wyandotte in its early stages.

Still another element has crept in to better the size, constitution, and size and color of eggs, to wit—the smooth legged White Wonder, (so called) these being produced from the cross of White Wyandotte males upon albino Brahma hens. To this cross we are indebted for the large dark shelled eggs in many of the Wyandotte flocks of the present day.

It is a significant fact that a specimen with pure white plumage in the Rocks more generally favors the Wyandotte type, while Wyandotte females with creamy color and yellow quill are more liable to be elongated and slightly convex shaped, thus favoring the Rock type. Small boned, short bodied, light weight Wyandottes are traced, in the majority of cases, to either excessive use of the incubator, or to those families in which White Hamburg blood was used in their early history, while weight and slightly elongated bodies of recent date used to be traced unmistakably to the Brahma blood brought to such families through the Wonder cross of White Wyandotte-Brahma origin.

The foregoing are all facts within the knowledge of the writer. Our exhibitions demonstrate which of the several families now on the boards are best appreciated.

There is no denying the fact that the Brahma infusion of blood has given constitution, and larger frames, and more uniform size, and color to the eggs, and thus far done more to make the White Wyandotte a fixture and a popular favorite among the white plumed fowls of the land than any other cross used to give life and strength to albinos.

That the Hamburg cross may not be misunderstood,—be it known that the Standard for a time admitted White Hamburgs with yellow legs. The limitation on them expired about the time of the admission of the Rose Comb White Leghorns and White Wyandottes. Thus you see they were utilized with both White Leghorns and White Wyandottes, and finally absorbed by those two breeds. I remember that on receiving some White Wyandotte eggs from a certain breeder I returned half of the eggs with a note saying that I was not buying Hamburg and Leghorn eggs as White Wyandotte eggs.

That season there was a great call for White Wyandotte eggs,—so great that a single week I sold $100 worth of them.

The breed has come out of its transition state the strongest, and best breeding, and most popular of any breed of albino origin that the country has ever known.

The American Dominique. Here is a breed that should be immortalized as the ancestor of America's first and most popular Rock—the Barred Plymouth Rock. It gave birth to a breed that, because of clearer color and greater weight, supplanted it.

The early specimens (from 1844 to 1860) in New England were universally those of single comb, and called "the hawk colored fowls" by the farmers of those days. These were the ancestors that figured in the makeup of the Plymouth Rocks previous to 1869. But the best, and those of the rose comb which ultimately brought them into our Standard as the American Dominique, were of french origin; the best specimens the writer ever saw, being those shown at Chicago's first exhibition in 1866, by Colonel Howard.

For a number of years, up to the advent of the Plymouth Rocks, these were one of the most popular of ordinary sized fowls. Since this family has been allowed to drop into oblivion we have never seen their equal in any exhibition. Is it not a fact that for the past twenty years not a pen of them strictly first class, as described by the Standard, has appeared?

The Plymouth Rock surpassed the Dominique, and caused its downfall. That, at their best they were a unique and beautiful breed, none can deny, and as an exhibition variety it is a wonder to me that they are not resuscitated and made to embellish our many exhibitions. The far reaching demand that utility must accompany exhibi-

Houdan.

The reasons why more Houdan fowls are not bred by poultrymen other than fanciers are several.

- Most persons do not know of their real worth.
- The fancier has not turned his show eye in the direction of the fleshy beauty, and hence
- The fad is not prejudiced in Houdan favor.
- Folks say the Houdan crest prevents them from seeing hawks and other poultry; and so on and so on.

It is an old breed. This is another reason many persons do not breed this bird, because many persons must have a thing that is new or odd in appearance or nothing.

The best evidence that the Houdan is an excellent breed is seen in the fact that those persons who have handled it for a number of years are slow to dispose it for any other. They see it is highly meritorious and so keep it in preference to any other known breed.

There is one feature of the Houdan that very much mars its beauty unless it is bred right—the crest and beard. But this is comparatively easy of accomplishment, and then it is really a mark of beauty.

A few of the many points of true excellence it possesses are these:

- Quick to grow and feather as soon as the Wyandotte, Rock, or Brahma.
- Fertility of eggs, nearly every one producing a chick under favorable conditions.
- Early laying of pullets.
- Great productiveness of the females, hens 3 to 5 years old laying nearly as well as when they were young.

- Largeness of the eggs and its pure white shell.
- Ease of confinement and perfect contentment in restricted yards.

(7) Almost perfect quality as a table fowl, both as to flavor of flesh and the very small percentage of waste in dress. The bones of the bird are very small, as are the entrails.

(8) Beauty of plumage, when desired, because it is one of the easiest breeds to produce an attractive feather.

(9) Longevity of the bird life.

(10) Excellence as mothers when now and then one wishes a brood. It is classified as a non-incubating fowl, but quite a good percentage of the elderly females are liable to set.

Are these qualifications not sufficient to entitle it to better recognition? Why do not more breed them? I have tried partially to answer the question, but in the face of the opposition those who adopt the Houdan as "one of the family" never more have cause to regret the adoption. Really there is not a better fowl in America or any other country.—California Cultivator.

Columbian Wyandottes.

This new variety of Wyandottes was originated by the Rev. B. M. Briggs, of Blackstone, Mass. He states that he originally started with a White Wyandotte male and Barred Rock female, and continued in that line without using any other breeds to cross him. If, of necessity, had to inbreed to some extent before he could produce a fixed type of birds. One breeder has used a Silver Wyandotte male, in one of his crosses, with some success.

Columbian Wyandottes are an exceptionally handsome fowl, having all the nature characteristics of the Wyandotte family, clear yellow legs, neat rose comb, red ear lobes, and the Wyandotte shape. They are white in color, with the beautiful markings of the Light Brahma. In size, they are fully Standard weight. They are hardy, mature quickly, are easily fattened, and as their skin is a rich golden yellow, are without a peer as a table fowl. They are never broody, make good sitters and careful mothers. They have proved themselves to be the equal of their sister varieties as layers, and I think that it is only a question of time when they will be as popular as the latter. W. B. Richardson.

BLOODSHED AT LAST.

Officer Bob Coffey Assassinated at Empire Saturday.

Stain While Searching the Woods
From a Party of Strikers
Who Fired on Guards.

The reign of lawlessness at Empire on Saturday culminated in the slaying of Robert H. Coffey, of this city, who had been for nearly a year in charge of the force of guards stationed at Empire.

On Saturday morning as John H. Fields, one of the guards, was escorting a number of miners to their work about 6 o'clock they saw a party of nine strikers on a hill across the railroad from the mines about half a mile away. The strikers opened fire at this range and the miners quickly got out of range of winchesters. Fields threw himself on the ground and returned the fire until reinforcements arrive under Deputy Sheriff Chas. J. Barnes and Chief Guard R. H. Coffey.

The strikers then ceased firing and disappeared over the hill. A squad of guards under George Lander started in pursuit on foot. Coffey borrowed a horse from Dr. Dooch and started through a piece of woods to head them off. Lander called out to him that he had better not expose himself alone, but he did not stop. This was the last seen of him until he was found dead four hours later. He was nearly two miles from the mines when found, near the house of Bayless Parker. Soon after he left, the guards heard three shots in that direction. As Coffey's gun was in his hand loaded, the probabilities are that the three shots were fired from ambush, as he rode through the woods. His body was found lying on the right shoulder, the gun under him. The horse was eating grass probably fifty yards away.

The fatal shot was a "mushroom bullet" from a rifle. It entered the left leg above the knee, severed an artery and spreading out tore a lace almost as large as a man's hand on the inside of his leg. As the horse was unhurt, Mr. Coffey had probably dismounted when attacked. He was lying in a pool of blood, lifeless. He had bled to

BALL PLAYER
Breaks an Arm While in Act of Throwing.

The last went to Empire Saturday and held an inquest. Abe Long, B. A. Newcomb, Ed Long, S. M. Dulin, A. V. Rutland, Sr., and J. W. Price, were empaneled as a jury.

G. W. Lander was the principal witness who detailed the facts given above. He was corroborated by B. F. Grant.

Deputy Sheriff C. J. Barnes stated that J. W. Anderson was suspected of the murder, as his shoes were found to fit the tracks leading from the place, after Anderson's arrest.

The jury returned a verdict of murder from a gunshot at the hands of parties unknown.

Before the finding of the body, Wm. and Ed Goldworthy, J. W. Anderson, Geo. Phillips, Ellis Dickard and two tramps named Barton, were arrested. Wm. Goldworthy resisted violently and attempted to shoot Deputy Barnes with a pistol snatched from John Fields' scabbard. He was overpowered and disarmed. The men were all brought to this city Saturday afternoon and lodged in jail.

Mr. Coffey's Funeral.

The body of the dead officer was brought to his home in this city, at 203 East 18th street, and funeral services were held at 3 o'clock by Rev. C. H. Nash of the Baptist church. Afterwards the Masonic Lodge, of which the deceased had been a member, took charge of the body and buried it with Masonic honors in Hopewell Cemetery.

Mr. Coffey was 53 years old and a brave and efficient officer. He formerly lived in South Christian but later entered the service of the L. & N. Railroad as a special detective, which position he held until his health failed. He located at Guthrie and served a term as mayor of that town. Then he came to Hopkinsville and having regained his health a year ago he was employed by the Empire Coal Co. to guard his property. He had been there ever since and when the Sheriff's posse was sent he became one of the 30 deputies sworn in. He was the recognized leader and as such the strikers feared and hated him. He stated to friends when here two weeks ago that he was "marked" for slaughter by the lawless element, but he never hazarded a moment. He was absolutely fearless and the very man to deal with a lawless element. His intrepid courage made him reckless at times and this cost him his life.

He leaves a family of five children and the bereaved widow. He was twice married. His first wife was Miss Boyd and the second Miss Chalkley, of Virginia. He has three grown sons and two smaller children. Two of the sons, Asa and Bob, are in Hopewell. Frank is in the railroad business and was absent at the funeral.

The trials of five of the men arrested were called yesterday and continued until Thursday. Two tramps named Barton were released.

The officers believe they have the right men or at least a part of them.

There is much indignation felt at the assassination and while there is immediate danger it would not take much more trouble to arouse a mob spirit.

DRIVING SNOW

And Freezing Weather Forecast For Last of November.

Look For Storms of a Blizzarding Character On or About 25th.

November weather, summarized from Hicks' forecasts, will be about as follows:

A reactionary disturbance will be central on 1st and 2nd, causing a rise in temperature, falling barometer and scattering storms and squalls of rain and snow from about 1st to the 3rd. A sharp, sudden rise of the barometer and change to colder will follow close after these disturbances, but a sudden change to storm conditions will come about the 5th in western extremes. The regular Vulcan storm period begins on the 5th, is central on the 7th and extends to the 10th. About Wednesday the 6th to Sunday the 10th, storms of wind, rain and snow will make their transit from west to east across the country. A decided cold wave will be advanced from the northwest before the low barometer and storms of this period reach the Atlantic. A sudden return to warmer, low barometer and rain and snow will be natural about Monday the 11th to Thursday the 14th. These reactionary storms will be followed by a more persistent and general change to winter conditions, and sharp cold will be general over central and northern sections for several days, leading up to the Vulcan storm period on the 18th. This Vulcan storm period extends from the 16th to the 20th. Some of the most decided storms of the month may be expected from about Sunday the 17th to Tuesday the 21st. These storms will reach a crisis on and touching the 10th, rain, wind and thunder being followed in many sections within a few hours by northwesterly gales, driving snow and change to freezing. The freezing weather following the last storm will react to warmer from the 23rd to 26th. Look for many more storms, largely of a blizzarding character, not more than forty-eight hours before or after sundown on the 25th, followed rapidly by a great rise of the barometer and a rushing cold wave that will be felt far to the south. Marked autumnal storms will be brewing, if not already in progress, as the month goes out.

This period will most likely be in the opening days of December, but the first stages will be attended by very low barometer and change to much warmer, followed at first by general and heavy rains. Later the rain will turn to a general and destructive sleet, and this in turn to a real snow storm and blizzard over northern parts of the country.

"LADY FROM PHILADELPHIA"

She Was a Great-Grand-daughter of Benjamin Franklin.

Every one who has read the interesting "Peterkin Papers" remembers the "Lady from Philadelphia." She it was to whom the Peterkins turned when they didn't know what to do or how to do it. Comparatively few persons, however, knew that the "Lady" really lived, that her name was Grespie and that her great-grandfather was Benjamin Franklin. These facts, which with many others equally interesting were brought out on the occasion of her death in Philadelphia the morning of Oct. 13, lend additional interest to a new department just begun in the Ladies' Home Journal, called "The Lady from Philadelphia." The identity of the person who conducts this department is withheld. All that is vouchsafed is that the new "Lady" is an authority on all questions pertaining to etiquette, manners and good form, and each month in the Journal she will answer such questions regarding these points as may be sent in by young women.

One day a keeper accidentally broke a bottle of Scott's Emulsion near the monkey cage and the monkeys eagerly lapped it up from the floor. This suggested the idea that it might do them good. Since then the monkeys have received regular doses and the keepers report very few deaths from consumption. Of course it's cheaper to buy Scott's Emulsion than new monkeys—and that suits the circus budget.

Consumption in monkeys and in man is the same disease. If you have it or are threatened with it can you take the hint?

This picture represents the Trade Mark of Scott's Emulsion and is on the wrapper of every bottle. Send for free sample.

It Happened in a Drug Store.

"One day last winter a lady came to my drug store and asked for a brand of cough medicine," says Mr. R. C. Grandin, the popular druggist of Ontario, N. Y. "She was disappointed and wanted to know what cough preparation I could recommend. I said to her that I could freely recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and that she made a call with the lady and after giving it a fair trial she did not find it worth the money to bring back the bottle and I would refund the price paid. In the course of a day or two the lady came back in company with a friend and of course the medicine had not proved to her satisfaction. She advised her to buy a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I consider that a very good recommendation for the remedy." The remedy owes its great popularity and extensive sale, in a large measure to the personal recommendations of people who have been cured by its use. It is for sale by all druggists.

Buff Wyandottes.

This is one of the newer varieties of Wyandottes which has attained immense popularity, owing to exceeding beauty and usefulness. They were first brought out in the early 90's, and like the Buff Rocks, the Rhode Island Reds furnished the foundation blood. Whatever their make up, we care not today how they were produced, we have the most beautiful Wyandotte of them all—a grand market fowl and great layer.

Standard weight: Cock, 8½ pounds; cockerel, 7½ pounds; hen, 6½ pounds; pullet, 5½ pounds. They have bright red rose comb, pure red ears, yellow skin and legs. They have rich golden buff color with fine undercolor, and some of the best specimens have clear buff wings and almost pure buff tail. At the late big Detroit show the first cock and cockerel each scored 94% and they might be called pure buff—buff all over, even to tail. Such birds with buff tails are scarce and hard to secure yet, and are worth a lot of money.

As chicks, Buff Wyandottes are very hardy and grow and feather fast. They come out of the shell chunky little fellows like golden butter balls and with a determination to live. They are great foragers and can hustle for a living with any of them. They make grand broilers at an early age, as they are plump at all times. It is safe to say they are ready for market a little earlier than other breeds or varieties and will dress plumper and look better. As they are golden in color of skin and legs, they present a beautiful appearance when dressed and bring top prices; no blue skin or legs; no unsightly pin feathers; they look good to eat, tempting, and buyers pick them in preference to all others.

They are wonderful winter layers. They are the layers when eggs are scarce and prices high. Their low rose combs do not suffer in very cold weather and they shell out the eggs as though the weather was fine. Of course they have to be decently housed and cared for. They won't lay if fed on snow balls or wind or housed in the open air. Give them good houses and care, and as money producers they are a surprise. They will sit if allowed to do so, but are not hard to break up. They are very careful mothers and will raise their chicks as well as any variety.

The Buff Wyandotte can fairly claim to be the most beautiful fowl in America to-day. To all those who love to keep a beautiful fowl for beauty's sake as well as for profit, I recommend these fowls. A beautiful bird of this variety has only to be seen to be appreciated.

They breed nearly as true to color as any other Buff varieties. A large per cent come with buff hackles, pure red ears, Buff wings and nearly Buff tails. Common defects are black in neck, buckle, slate undercolor, white in earlobes and white or black in wings and tail. By careful selection from year to year a larger per cent of fine chicks are secured fit for breeding and exhibiting. Pullets now reach a score of from 90 to 95 for good specimens and cocks and cockerels 90 to 94%. For beauty, for great laying, for profit—try the Buff Wyandotte.—Thos. H. Mills, in Poultry Gazette.

A DOG THAT KNOWS COLORS.

Shows a decided preference for things that are red.

Among the many dogs and notes which have come to me as a result of my account in the New York World of my cocker spaniel's action in licking the steam from the window that he might see out, one of the most interesting is from Dr. F. M. Kitchell, of Perth Amboy, who presented this dog to me.

The doctor says: "I saw your note concerning Tracy. Mrs. Kitchell says he is the brightest dog we ever had and suggests that you watch his actions over red flowers. He destroyed every red one in reach and paid no attention to other colors."

When this note came it had been already noticed that Tracy had a penchant for red. On a settee in the dining-room is a fine red velvet cushion, which is the more valued from the fact that it was some years ago a present from a friend who has long since passed out of our life.

I was surprised on going down to dinner on the day after Tracy came to see this cushion turned bottom side up. I was told that it had been so turned because Tracy could not be kept off it.

"Does he care to be on it since it is turned over?" I asked.

"No."

"Is not its underside softer than its upper?"

"Much."

"It must be that he is endowed with the sense of color."

That this is true seemed to me much more probable from the fact that I was told that it was almost impossible to keep him out of the parlor, which is carpeted with a red Brussels.

It had also been noticed that in the sitting-room he from the very first showed a preference for a red bit of carpet to lie upon rather than any of several other things less hard and more desirable placed.

Remembering these facts, the suggestion which I have quoted from the doctor's note did not astonish me—if indeed, after 30 years of constant work in animal physiology, any relation as the possible manifestation of faculty by an animal could astonish me.

But I proceeded to watch Tracy's actions over red flowers.

At hand were some branches of Japanese and bridal wreath. That the former is red and the latter white may as well be said, though I presume that everyone knows it. Without hesitation Tracy chose the Japanese. I made the experiment again and again with different flowers. Tracy showed preference for the red flower every time.

I am glad to be able to add this to the abundance of proofs that I have that the dog is endowed with the sense of color.

TWO COSTLY CAMERAS.

Metal Work of One is of Gold—Silver or the Other.

A London firm of photographic apparatus-makers, during the sojourn of the Moorish ambassadors, constructed a camera for the sultan of Morocco at a cost of $10,500. The instrument is of the quarter plate size (3½ x 1½) and I differ in no particular regard the fittings from the ordinary camera made by this firm for general purposes. The metal work of the camera is constructed of gold, including the screws, and also the holders for retaining the plates. The instrument occupies the service of ten men for four months, the polishing of the base boards alone requiring eight weeks to accomplish. About 150 ounces of gold have been utilized and the instrument weighs 13 pounds instead of five pounds, the weight of the same camera for ordinary use. It is a combination hand and stand camera with double extension racking out from the center and rising front. Another camera was also made by the same firm—half plate in size—but in this instance silver was employed instead of gold for embellishing it. The cost of the second camera was $4,500. The sultan of Morocco is stated to be an expert amateur photographer.—Scientific American.

The Smallest Motor Car.

The smallest motor-car in the world may be seen at the Pan-American exposition. It belongs to a minute person named Chiquita, who is 26 inches high. The car is a miniature duplicate, all complete, of a full-grown electric Victoria and can run 2,600 hours. The step is four inches from the ground and the side door is 14 inches wide. The 12-inch wheels have front and rear axle 11 inches apart. Even with its head up the car is only two inches higher than an ordinary household chair.

The car is built of steel and is covered with a light, flexible material. It is driven by a small motor and has a top speed of 10 miles per hour. The car is built for the express purpose of being used as a toy for children.

Take no Substitute. All Druggists.

Kansas minister and his wife are crushed to death by a tree at Cedarville, Ill., and three other persons are seriously injured.

A report from Sup't. J. C. Gluck, Reform School, Princeton, W. Va., Oct. 9, 1900: "After trying all other advertised cough medicines we have decided to use Foley's Honey and Tar exclusively in the West Virginia Reform School. I find it the most effective and absolutely harmless. Sold by all druggists."

Mr. Hutton submits proposal on behalf of Panama Canal Company to sell property to the United States government.

—Mr. T. Biddimmo of Parshallville, Mich., was troubled with salt water in his eyes and was compelled to seek a number of doctors without relief. After two applications of Baudens Salve, her hands became better and in a short time she was entirely cured. Beware of substitutes. Sold by all druggists.

Walter B. Henry, of Chicago, arrives at New York on the Deutschland, still in pursuit of his sweet heart, Miss Kaywood.

S. A. Ingalls, Crown Point, N. Y., writes: "My wife suffered from kidney trouble for years. She was induced to try Foley's Kidney Cure and in less than a week after she began using it, she was greatly improved and the three bottles cured her. Sold by all druggists."

The painless filling you get at a restaurant is more satisfactory than the one advertised by a dentist.

Backache should never be neglected. It may be kidney disease, which is well known to all. You may neglect Fright's disease, diabetes, or other serious and often fatal complaints. Foley's Kidney Cure makes the kidneys well. Sold by all druggists.

If some people were civilized they would not be holding down such good jobs in the dime museums.

J. Odgers, of Frostburg, Md., writes: "I had a bad attack of kidney complaint and tried Foley's Kidney Cure. I was not relieved at first and I was perfectly cured after taking two bottles. Be sure you take Foley's. Sold by all druggists."

Advertising as an Art.

There is a know-how in advertising which every one does not possess. The attention must be so arrested and the information must be so conveyed as to do good without disgusting the taste of the reader. Advertising which state clearly what one has for sale and the price expected, which are active in manner and manner, and which are free from disgusting extravagance and exaggeration, are generally the ones that give the best results. If an advertiser starts out with an assertion, which in substance is that he is the only person in the world that has any good Plymouth Rocks, for instance, the reader is likely to distrust all that he says, and the chances are that he will have no dealings with him. The would-be buyer has in mind several of all other well-known breeders, who have forgotten more about Plymouth Rocks than the advertiser ever knew, and concludes that some of the old stock is good enough for him. Exaggeration excites suspicion, and this drives away custom.

A reasonable amount of commendation is desirable, but care should be taken not to overdo the matter. Better understate than overrate the stock advertised. People will not believe extravagant assertions. The character of the publication has considerable to do with the art of advertising, as well as the value of the advertisement, and the character of the journal is of full more consequence than the size of its circulation; however, the latter is a matter of no small moment. Both are sought by the advertiser, but of the two, I would choose the one having a good reputation, even though it have a small circulation.

I think I am safe in saying that the most important part in successful advertising is persistency. A whole page advertisement appearing only at long intervals is of less value than a small card constantly before the public. The small card constantly appearing indicates that the breeder has come to say, and his persistence wins friends, and friends make sales, while spasmodic advertising leads people to imagine that the advertiser has purchased a "job lot," which he intends to sell out at what he can get.

The wise advertiser adapts his advertisement to the requirements of his business, and he is not discouraged if his first season's advertising does not yield him large returns. He expects that it will take time to build up a trade. The public must become familiar with his name before they care to entrust their orders with him. Buyers have his word that his stock is good, but how are they to know? His name is unfamiliar to them. They will wait until next season before they try him, and if his name appears then, they will give him a small order. If the stock proves to be good, the small order leads to a large one, until after a time his business must be enlarged to meet the demands of his trade.—Monthly Poultry Breeder.

Cutting Green Food.

It has been very difficult to cut all kinds of bulky food for poultry green enough for their use, and it is not easy to cut green food as it is to cut hay. Cheap clover cutters have now been introduced however, which cut either dry or green food to the length of one fourth of an inch, and cut it rapidly. Those who raise poultry will find that there is a great saving in the cost of food if they will cut coarse feed fine and feed it to the hens as a portion of their rations. They will be more thrifty, and lay a large number of eggs, while the work necessary will occupy but a short period of time for the cutting.

Handling and Marketing Eggs.

If poultry men and farmers would take care of their eggs as they should, it should be an easy matter for many of them to get from three or five cents more per dozen than they are now getting, and in many instances ten to twelve cents more could be obtained. It is quite interesting to see what quality of stock the city markets are eager to pay for. We may look over the market quotations in the papers and price currents, but many times they represent only three-quarters of the price that can be secured for strictly fancy fresh eggs.

Now to get these extra prices, it should be well understood that the eggs must be all right, not a single bad egg must ever go in, for just so sure as a poor egg is found, the deal is off.

There are hundreds of families in all of the small cities, and in the villages they may be found by the score—who are ready and anxious to pay a premium for eggs that are known to be fresh, but stale eggs are bad things to do business with, in fact you can't do business with them at all. There is no one that wants to pay or will pay any fancy price for eggs, when they have got to break every one in a dish by itself, to see if it is fit to use. Neither do they want to go above the market price for small or dirty eggs.

I remember very well while handling eggs a few years ago, that I had one man in particular who furnished me with about thirty dozen a week, and I am sure there were not more than six dozen in the lot but what had more or less dirt on them. I tried to persuade him to clean them, but he said he had not the time, and could get no more for them if cleaned, and that, if I did not want them, the other buyers would gladly take them. Now such stock can never be made to look as clean and bright as that which is cleaned at once when taken from the nest, or better, never allowed to become soiled. And these people who are not particular to have their eggs in marketable condition are generally the ones who are as apt to put in stale eggs as fresh ones.

There are many farmers keeping from one to two hundred hens, who never sort or clean any of their eggs. But these are just the persons, who with a little extra care, should be able to get the fancy prices, for with the large number of hens, it would be an easy matter to fill a case in a very few days, and with nice, clean eggs of uniform size and color.

Different markets prefer particular colored eggs. Most New England markets pay a few cents extra for eggs of a uniform brown color. Other markets demand pure white eggs. We often hear people say, "What difference does it make about the color of the shell?" Well, it makes a good deal of difference, if we are able to get five or ten cents more per dozen for eggs of a certain color. It may seem like a foolish fancy but it pays to cater to people's fancies when we are selling them goods. If you are keeping Plymouth Rocks or some other breed that lays brown eggs, and your market pays a little extra for white ones, it would be wise to make a change in breed, or it certainly would be a better policy to attempt to change the taste of the consumers.

All markets unite in paying only the highest prices for such as are of good size, not necessarily over-large. It is plain to be seen, then, that to seize these fancy prices, pure-bred stock—or that which is very nearly so—must be kept, so as to have the eggs uniform in size and color. Then if the eggs are kept clean and marketed while fresh it will be an easy thing to get a premium on them.

Cats, Rats And Mice.

These three play havoc with the poultryman, and often try to take the management of the plant into their own hands.

These are such innocent looking creatures that we fail to give them their just verdict. A cat will eat small chickens by the dozen, and larger ones will also go to help satisfy her hunger. Even larger ones than you would expect are taken by an old experienced cat. Cats are sly and seldom are caught in the act of catching chicks; yet most every cat will bear watching. A good cat is a valuable aid to a breeder; a bad cat is a valuable (?) loss to him. It is quite a temptation to a cat, whose nature it is to prey upon such living animals, even if it never before had taken chicks. So a cat is always a suspicious character to have around among the chicks, and the first one that it catches is your most prized chick, or at least one of your best. If they once get in the habit of killing chicks you will have a task that is a hard one if you can cure them of it. If you keep the cat that has this habit, keep it shut up and not the chicks. Some may keep the chicks confined so the cat won't get them; better shut up the cat if it is your own, or better still dispose of it. And if a stray cat kills your birds, just give it a hard one if you can cure them of it. If you keep the cat that has this habit, keep it shut up and not the chickens. Some may keep the chicks confined so the cat won't get them; better shut up the cat if it is your own, or better still dispose of it. And if a stray cat kills your birds, just give it a load of shot.

Rats are harder to get at. You can easily kill the cat, as they can't hide so easily as rats. Of course cats are quick and sly, yet you can get rid of them if you want to. Now to get rid of rats when once they get a good hold, is a job. In the first place clean up all old rubbish, such as briar and weed patches and brush piles along the fences. Leave them no place to hide. You can poison them if there is no danger of killing anything else. Traps work well for a time, but generally the last few are pretty scary and afraid. Cats will soon clean them out unless they kill the chicks themselves; in such a case but few rats. The main point is to allow them no place to stay such as the brush piles, etc., mentioned above. Rat Terrier Dogs are excellent rat exterminators, as recommended by others. I have never used them, but see no reason why they are not valuable for such purposes.

Mice do not kill chickens, but they do eat plenty of grain and waste a lot more. A dozen mice will eat more grain than you would expect during the winter. Although do not kill chicks, yet I have had them kill squirrel pups for me, so pigeon breeders need to exterminate them. A good cat, traps, poisons, or rat dogs, will get rid of them.

Rats and mice have no place anywhere around a poultryman's buildings, and cats have no place there unless they are trusty ones, when they are valuable.

Besides these there are many other thieves that are enemies of a poultryman. Wild animals, such as weasels, minks, foxes, owls and crows will always seize every opportunity to obtain fowls and chicks, both large and small. Besides, there is the two legged thief that resembles a man in every way, yet honestly speaking he is not a man.

All these must be gared against. Good buildings and everything first class aids in all ways, not only to keep out thieves but to make success doubly sure. Avoid all the wastes of your poultry work. Little things count up and make great things.

HOW TO GO TO BUFFALO.

Pointers For Persons Wishing to Attend the Pan-American Exposition.

Millions of dollars have been expended to make the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo an interesting and instructive affair. That end has been accomplished and persons who witness the grand display will be impressed by the magnitude of the project. It is purely an "All-American" enterprise and all Americans should see it.

All tickets to Buffalo over the new Akron route are good for stop-over at Chautauqua Lake; and all tickets over this route via Buffalo to St. Lawrence River and Canadian Resorts and eastern points, including New York, can be made good for stop-overs at the Pan-American Exposition and at Niagara Falls. The expense for tickets, the comforts enjoyed en route, the sights to be seen, and the privileges for extending journeys to the noted summer havens in the Lake Region, should be investigated. Persons who may think they are not able to stand the cost will be surprised at the enjoyment and pleasure they may experience at small expense. Those who visited the World's Fair will also be agreeably surprised at the Pan-American Exposition, and those who have never attended an occasion of this kind should not miss this opportunity to be a true American by attending an American Exposition. C. H. Hagerly, D. P. Agt., Louisville, Ky., is waiting to tell you about it.

The Jersey Blue.

The Jersey Blue and the Andalusian should be worked side by side, the one as the blue laced general purpose fowl, the other, as the largest and best proportioned Mediterranean. Now don't allow the Minorca fancier to grow angry at this, for the facts are the Andalusians average with the Black Minorcas in size. They equal them in egg grade, and have the advantage in head points, not being overbalanced by the over large combs. These two blue fowls are both marked and colored alike, or rather they should be, if both or either had behind them the push and vigor of those who have pushed to the front the Rhode Island Reds, two better breeds would not be gaining in public favor than the one that has gained at the hands of the Rhode Island Red Club.

The Jersey Blue is a fine large fowl. Very strong and prolific, they are a splendid farm fowl, and their eggs are of good size, strong and firm in shell, fine in flavor and they are good market poultry. For a novelty is pushed they have much to recommend them. They breed quite as true as does the Andalusian. If handled with care they would make a most attractive line for the exhibition. If pushed for their own worth, they would quickly prove their high qualities above others that have gained much notoriety through the laudation of their improved qualities. — Practical Poultryman.

Church Hill, The Square and Beverly, and stating further that if I concurred in this recommendation to write the post office department specifically naming the offices to be discontinued. I immediately through the Hopkinsville papers notified the people interested in these offices of the request made of me, in order that objection, if any, might be made to their discontinuance. Several days thereafter I received divers letters and two petitions signed by numerous persons protesting against the offices at Church Hill and Beverly being abolished. I forwarded these to the Postoffice Department with a letter from myself, declining to concur in Mr.
Rising's recommendation that these offices be discontinued. On the 17th of October I received a letter from the General Superintendent of Free Delivery System, acknowledging receipt of petitions of protest, and stating that Rural Free Delivery service would not be discontinued from Hopkinsville unless the offices at Church Hill, Caleodina, Beverly and The Square could be abolished.

Seeing that this ruling of the Department presented the proposition squarely that the establishment of Free Delivery would depend upon these offices being abolished. I immediately, by letter and through the Hopkinsville papers, notified the parties interested that I would be in Hopkinsville to investigate the matter with the view of doing what appeared to me to be the best for the greatest number of people.
I have made this investigation, giving both sides an opportunity to be heard, and am of the opinion that Rural Free Delivery should not be discontinued at these offices, and I shall for that reason concur in the recommendation of the Special Agent that they be discontinued.

I am aware of the fact that this action may result in a hardship to some people, served by these offices, for a while, but I recognize the further fact that the greatest good to the greatest number of people will be obtained by the establishment of the route. I am an earnest advocate of Rural Free Delivery and regard it as the best institution for the farmer and country people in general within their limits.

Do You Know Madame Qui Vive?

Probably you do, for Mrs. Qui Vive has a national reputation as an inspiring friend to every woman with a beauty woe. Her "Woman Beautiful" department in the daily and Sunday issues of THE NEW RECORD HERALD is a peculiar source of joyous helpfulness to mankind.

Her instructions on complexion care are interlarded here and there with snappy little epigrams as "cheerers." The weapons she suggests to beauty seekers for the complete and instant beauty grievances do not include artificial methods—factory" friz-zes, rouge and other horrors being barred. She gives instructions on correct breathing, what to eat, how to bathe—in brief, how to become a healthy, wholesome woman.

No wether is popularly known to many thousands of women.

The Grace Rentfrow Stock Co. will be at the opera house all this week. New songs, dances and specialties.

Experience of a Spanish Girl Not Yet Thirty.

The Spanish journals relate the perhaps unparalleled matrimonial experiences of a young Spanish woman named Isabella Caporal, who in six years was lost by death six husbands, and now awaits in modest patience her wedding day with a seventh. In 1894 Senorita Isabel, then a young girl of 21, migrated to New Orleans, and soon married a theatrical manager named Freeman, who died in a few months from yellow fever during a starring tour. In order to better to conduct the company his widow, after a few weeks, married one of the actors, a Spaniard named Hany, who was fatally stabbed on their wedding night, while trying to mediate in a brawl in the boarding house. Three weeks later another of the actors led her blushing to the altar. He was a Mexican named Lopez, with whom the offended laws of his country had a crow to pluck. Arrested, he sought escape by leaping from a train, was killed, and for the third time in twelve months poor Isabel became a widow. Very soon, however, a fourth husband came along. He was an American named Knight,

Can You Afford To?

Can you afford to experiment with unknown and untried brands of Fertilizers, when you can get right here what you know to be good? Soils are of great variety, what suits your farm may not be adapted to your neighbor's. Experimenting may mean the loss of a crop, as well as the amount invested in Fertilizers. Every farmer knows Armour and Homestead, Eagle and Ox'Brand Fertilizers. They are no experiment. It's Time to Put in Your Order Now if you want it to come forward with shipments for Early Fall seeding.

The Tennessee Farmer, (published at Nashville) reached our desk very much improved in every respect.

It has a very attractive new front page head, new department heads, and is better printed than ever, and on better paper.

The departments cover the entire farm in agriculture, horticulture, live stock, dairy, apiary, poultry and the household.

It has been in existence twice as long as any other agriculture paper ever established in the State.

It is now in its twenty-first year. Its recent reorganization has materially benefited it in its reading matter. It is now full of matter of interest to the farmers of this country, and, being the only agricultural paper in the State, should be well patronized.

It is cheap enough, too, only $1 per year. The publisher Mr. W. G.
